Judge Jeffrey Moskowitz Named Deputy Chief Judge of the Maine District Court

April 22, 2014

Portland, Maine, For Immediate Release.

The Chief Judge of the Maine District Court, Charles C. LaVerdiere, today announced the appointment of Maine District Court Judge Jeffrey Moskowitz to serve as Deputy Chief Judge of the Maine District Court. In making the appointment, Chief Judge LaVerdiere said, “I am grateful to Judge Moskowitz for accepting the position, and assisting me in the administration of Maine’s 29 District Courts. Judge Moskowitz will continue to serve on the District Court bench in Portland, and in the Cumberland County Unified Criminal Docket (UCD). In addition to those duties he will assist in managing courts from York to Madawaska. I look forward to working with Judge Moskowitz to improve service to Maine people.”

Judge LaVerdiere said, “I also want to thank outgoing Deputy Chief Judge Mullen, for his service as Deputy Chief for the last three years. In that time we have seen the expansion of the UCD to several counties, and also improvements in the provision of guardian ad litem services. We will miss him on the District Court, but know Maine people will continue to benefit from his work as a Superior Court Justice.”

Judge Moskowitz was first appointed to the Maine District Court in 2008.
